Extended deadline for Post Office questionnaires

If you haven’t completed your questionnaire could you please do so now and return it as a matter of urgency to the Walking Shop, or if necessary ask a member of the support group to collect it. If you need another blank form these can also be collected from the Walking Shop.

Support Osmotherley Post Office at Top Shop

A decision to close Osmotherley Post Office was announced on February 12th. Along with this, also announced was a proposal to offer a limited hosted Post Office service (8 hours per week) based in the village hall. Despite assumptions made by Post Office Ltd. in their printed literature, no agreement had been made by the Village Hall Committee to allow the hall to be used for this Hosted service.

A working group has already started to examine the criteria and rationale behind this decision. We only have 6 weeks from February 12th in which to do this, and you support is vital. Please do not assume that this decision is final, as we have every confidence in the possibilities of overturning it. Hence, the importance of completing the questionnaire as the more returns we have, the stronger our case.

Public Meeting 13th March Village Hall 7.30 pm

A public meeting is to be held in the Village Hall on Thursday 13th March to which representatives of Postwatch, Post Office Ltd. and the National Park will be invited. A reasoned approach is essential to ensure the success of the campaign and a careful presentation of evidence based on fact is to be prepared. The meeting will be chaired by the Parish Council.

All who would like to attend are welcome to do so. If anyone requires a lift please contact one of the volunteers below.

Conservation Areas

Osmotherley and Thimbleby both include designated "conservation areas" encompassing the historic cores of the villages. Conservation areas are defined in legislation as areas "of special architectural and historic interest, the character or appearance of which it is desirable to preserve or enhance". There are over 8000 conservation areas nationwide covering a very diverse range of historic sites from twentieth-century housing estates such as New Earswick at York, to the Settle-Carlisle Railway line in the Dales. The National Park contains 42 conservation areas, predominantly focused on the centres of historic towns and villages, but also including a planned Victorian parkland at Guisborough.

In Osmotherley, the conservation area boundary runs to the south behind the primary school, crossing South End to include Back Lane to the east, continuing behind the rear boundaries of houses on North End up to Ruebury Lane and back down to include Grant Close and then follow the line of the pathway along the long plots behind West End to Cuddy Lane and back across the fields to the primary school. The area therefore includes most of the village's historic buildings but excludes more modern developments on the peripheries. It was designated in 1977.

In Thimbleby, the conservation area encompasses the whole of the village. Because the National Park boundary runs along the main road, responsibility for planning control is split between the National Park Authority (to the south) and Hambleton District Council. It was designated in 1986, and as a small, linear rural village with generously spaced houses it has a very different character to Osmotherley's more bustling, almost country town character with tightly packed terraced housing. The main statutory effect of designation is that the local planning authority has a duty to ensure that development that takes place within the area preserves or enhances its architectural and historic character. Obviously to some extent this judgement will always be subjective, so it is important for residents and the local planning authority to understand what the elements are that contribute to the area's distinctive character. Initiatives such as the production of a village design statement, and in the future the production of a conservation area appraisal, are important contributors towards a shared understanding of character, and should help applicants, consultees and planners to evaluate, comment on and make informed decisions on development proposals.

One problem with trying to ensure that development preserves character has always been that most small changes such as alterations to windows, doors, roofing and walls have been classed as "permitted development" and so have not been controlled by the planning authority. As a result, much of what makes the area architecturally and historically distinctive – slate roofs, Yorkshire sliding sash windows etc. – can be subject to unsympathetic alteration, with small changes cumulatively eroding the justifications for conservation area status.

The introduction of article 4 directions in Osmotherley and Thimbleby in 2006 means that these sorts of external changes now require a free application for planning permission so that the Authority has control over the design and materials when traditional features such as doors and windows are being replaced. As a way of encouraging the reinstatement of such features where they have been lost in the past, the National Park has been able to offer conservation area enhancement grants towards the work. This has only been possible as a result of the article 4 direction because of the requirement to protect the investment of public funds in the future. So far, four properties in Osmotherley have received grants towards the reinstatement of traditional windows and doors, and the Parish Council has received grant for the repair of areas of cobbling. Residents of the National Park who are considering replacing modern materials such as plastic windows or concrete pantiles with timber or clay, or modern designs with traditional, are welcome to contact me for further information on the grants available or with any queries about the Article 4 controls.

Osmotherley School

This month children at Osmotherley School have had the pleasure of taking part in the very successful initiative "Music for Life" run by Sowerby Music. The children watched a performance given by 'Voice Matters' (a vocal trio) and then the older children took part in a workshop with the musicians. This culminated in a performance for the younger children at the end of the afternoon. It is interesting to hear the government's views on 'culture'. At Osmotherley school it is already high on the agenda! The children are supporting United Nations World Water Day which is on Saturday 22nd March. We are collecting coins, which will be sent to Wateraid after we have used them on March 20th, to try and cover an area of the playground. If anyone would like to contribute to this appeal there are bottles in the village or in school. Thank you to all those who have already contributed. Finally please don't forget our official opening on April 25th. Happy Easter everyone!!!

Osmotherley Area Parish Council

A large part of the February Parish Council monthly meeting was devoted to making arrangements to challenging the decision by Post Office Ltd. to close Osmotherley Post Office. Also discussed at the meeting was the condition of the roads in the villages. However, Highways have indicated that they will not be able to repaint the yellow lines until the new financial year. The water leak at the War Memorial came in for some justified criticism, but the Parish Council are obliged to wait until ground water levels subside before work can be carried out. Plans forwarded for discussion included the development of two stone barns at Swainstye Farm. To redevelop these without disturbing the existing stonework will improve the visual impact as well as enabling the owners to diversify their business interests and this was therefore supported. Another application proposed to alter the front facade of Central Stores. This was met with many objections as the proposal would detract from the highly visual shop front aspect of the property which is within the conservation area. Before any development could be considered members felt more should be done to try to retain a business on the site either by way of vigorously marketing the property or by trying to obtain a tenant. Because, the Parish Plan recommended that business losses should be discouraged this proposal was not supported.

RBL Helping Youth Help The Needy

During the war aspiring commandos reported to Achnacarry House in the Scottish Highlands. On arrival at the isolated railway station they were told the House was eight miles away and in two hours the doors would be locked and latecomers would be immediately rejected. A tough challenge, as each carried 40 lb of equipment. This test was undertaken by the grandfather of Stokesley ACF Detachment Commander, Sergeant Andy Davies. On mentioning the challenge to the current cadets, Andy was delighted to find he was not short of volunteers wishing to repeat the challenge, who also suggested they could in the process raise much needed cash for St. Dustan's charity for the blind. The lads are therefore tackling the same challenge faced by the commandos, under identical conditions – same route, timescale and weight-load - on 8th March, with a target of raising at least £1,000. In addition to the physical effort, the citizenship aspect of obtaining sponsorship for a charity illustrates that the cadets are proving that modern youth can match the determination of those in the 1940s. This aspect caught the attention of RBL Branch chairman David Black. "Hearing that these lads were tackling a challenge, and raising cash for an ex-service charity, made me feel it a well worthwhile activity for our members to support, especially in these times when youth is so frequently criticised. This is a case of the old helping the young to help disabled ex-service people. As a Legion branch, our fundraising is regulated, but as a group of friends we decided to hold a bingo session and give the proceeds to the lads." As a result, Sgt Andy and two Stokesley cadets attended the February bingo session and joined the enthusiastic players. At the end of the evening they were presented with a cheque for £202.
